INDIAN OLD FIELDS
Within the bends of the Shenandoah River, belo
the Indians kept fields burned off as pasture for deer and bison. These fields were old to th first white settlers who prized the ferti bottomlands. Today the old fields are site of modern farms.

MASSANUTTEN
The high point 10 miles straight ahead is on the south end of Massanutten Mountain. For fifty miles to the north this mountain splits the Shenandoah Valleu.
Tne Allegheny Mountains are beyond the Massanutten, 35 miles from here.

BIKE ROUTE

In this cemetery many victims of the Great Yellow Fever Epidemic of 1820
were buried.

Nearly 700 Savannahians died that year, including two local physicians who lost their lives caring for the stricken.

Several epidemics followed. In 1854 The Savannah Benevolent Association was organized to aid the families of the fever victims.
